Taking stock of Argentine reds beyond malbec

By Dave McIntyre - 2/22/12

Drawing up a list of wines to recommend in my column this week on Argentina's "other reds" was difficult, if only because there were so many candidates I could have included. Argentina has such a diversity of quality red wines that we shouldn't equate the country simply with malbec.

[...]worthy of our attention:
Alfredo Roca Pinot Noir
2010, Mendoza.
$12 ★★

ALFREDO ROCA

PINOT NOIR

SAN RAFAEL · MENDOZA · ARGENTINA

Rich and deep, with black fruit flavors reminiscent of an Oregon pinot, but at a fraction of the price. Great value. (Hand Picked Selections/Republic National)
